It's time... to talk about Sexual Violence.

Why Protection is Needed

Sexual harassment among farmworker women is a pervasive problem. 90% of farmworker women reported that sexual harassment is a major problem. A report by the federal government states that thousands of women had to have sex with supervisors to keep their jobs. Other women have endured constant grabbing, touching, and sexual propositions by their supervisors and co-workers.

- ✓ Sexual harassment, sexual assault, sexual discrimination and rape are AGAINST THE LAW!
- ✓ Your immigration status DOES NOT matter!
- ✓ Retaliation is NOT permitted by law!
- ✓ The police CANNOT force you to answer questions about your immigration status.

Useful Advice When Working

- ✓ Avoid being by yourself in the fields. Stay close to other workers, especially when going to the bathroom or walking in isolated areas.
- ✓ Share your phone number with other women at your job to create a system of communication in case of emergencies.

If you answer "yes" to any of these questions, sexual harassment may be present at your job:

1. I have seen co-workers whistling at women.
2. I feel uncomfortable when I am alone with one of my co-workers.
3. My co-workers make sexual comments to women.
4. I have received unwanted sexual contact at work.
